

MAY FORFEIT THEIR PLACES

Revelations Indicate Changes at Boys' Industrial School.

EVEN GERLACH MAY BE LET OUT

Charges That Chaplain Schaubly Has Been Obnoxious to Officers as Well as Wards of the Institution Made Before the State Board of Administration—Testimony Shows Condition of Partial Demoralization.

Lancaster, O., Dec. 14.—Nothing that reflects personally upon Superintendent F. C. Gerlach of the Boys' Industrial school has been so far offered in evidence in the probe which is being conducted at the institution by the state board of administration; but testimony has been given indicating that he is not in full and absolute control of the institution since many things that he would not countenance have been going on without his knowledge. Testimony seems to show that a condition of partial demoralization exists. No surprise would be caused if Major Gerlach, Dr. T. V. Dupuy, formerly of Ironton and Dayton, the institution physician, and Paul A. Welbe, disciplinarian, who has suffered a nervous breakdown as a result of criticism, would be removed.

Mingled with testimony which substantiated the charges of Chaplain John G. Schaubly, came assaults upon the minister which gave a new angle to conditions. Rev. Mr. Schaubly's positive stand against the administration had indicated that the minister was the champion of the boys at the school. It was charged that the chaplain was obnoxious to officers as well as wards.

Attacks upon the minister's integrity and charges that his influence at the institution had been demoralizing were heard by the state board after a strenuous examination of witnesses, who substantiated many of the charges of neglect and cruelty which the chaplain has made in his formal deposition, taken a week ago by the board.

"They can sit on me and rub it in," declared Rev. Mr. Schaubly, rising and glowering at Assistant Superintendent T. E. Westcott, following a charge by Mr. Westcott that the chaplain was not in accord with the work of the board of administration. Few boys or officers of the school, Mr. Westcott said, were in sympathy with the work of the chaplain.

Major Gerlach, superintendent, asserted that the chaplain's activity against his administration had increased after he had requested the parson's resignation two weeks ago. Officers of the home who had served under two, three and four other administrations expressed the opinion

Still Another Original Stunt

Mere Man, by the Hundreds, Clamoring to Get in the Ring.

New York, Dec. 14.—Theodore Roosevelt is a spug. He is the original charter member of the male persuasion, having joined the Society for the Prevention of Useless Giving as soon as it was organized. The fact might have remained a secret had it not been that the officers of the society have decided to admit to real membership the hundreds of male persons who have been clamoring to get in. Not in many a long day has anything made such a hit with the masculine mind.

From all over the country men have sent enthusiastic letters, and without waiting to know whether they were invited or not, have announced that they were starting spug squads. Seeing that there were going to be men spugs whether or no, Mrs. August Belmont, Miss Anne Morgan and the other officers decided to let the applicants in.

Jefferson County Probe Still Digs Up Pay Dirt

NAMES OF SIX MEN ADDED TO THE LIST

Additional Indictments By Jefferson County Grand Jury.

Steubenville, O., Dec. 14.—The special grand jury which a week ago returned nine indictments against seven men for alleged irregularities in connection with the recent election in Jefferson county, has returned a similar number against eight men. Included in the list are Richard Gilson, postmaster of Steubenville, and John G. Belknap, probate judge-elect, indicted when the grand jury made its first return. Like the former list of indictments, charges are for alleged violation of the Kimble corrupt practices act.

Those indicted and the charges are: Richard Gilson, giving $10 in support of the candidacy of Robert McCleary for county treasurer.

Former Common Pleas Judge John A. Mansfield, using in excess of $350 in his campaign for the office of state representative.

William C. Brown, prosecuting attorney-elect, exceeding the amount allowed by law in his campaign for prosecuting attorney.

John G. Belknap, probate judge-elect, two counts, making false and incomplete statement of expenses incurred in the campaign.

James Gilson, spending $2 for a keg of beer given to a worker in support of the candidacy of his brother, John Gilson.

Henry F. Lawler, justice of the peace, and A. F. Bienier, an election officer, jointly indicted for alleged promise to pay $300 to a worker for voting for Collin H. Smith, candidate for common pleas judge.

Alfred Crippin, soliciting money from E. DeWitt Erskine to work for certain candidates.

It is declared here that the cases would not be tried until the January term of court.

AMBASSADOR WHITELAW REID NEAR THE END

Has Asthmatic Trouble Coupled With Nervous Breakdown.

IN HIS SEVENTY-SIXTH YEAR

Physicians in Constant Attendance Upon the American Ambassador, Who, According to Reliable Report, Has but Slight Hope of Recovery. Son Summoned From the United States to Father's London Home.

London, Dec. 14.—Dorchester House, the headquarters of the American embassy, threw off its attempts at concealment and admitted that Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador, was seriously ill. His asthmatic trouble, coupled with a severe nervous breakdown, in a man 75 years of age has caused the most serious apprehension. While hopes are naturally entertained that there is a chance for his recovery, the likelihood of his illness having a fatal ending is now conceded. Physicians are in constant attendance upon the ambassador.

The condition of Mr. Reid may be imagined from the fact that yesterday there were three administrations of oxygen, and a cablegram was sent to Ogden Mills Reid informing him of his father's illness. The son replied that he would sail from New York on Dec. 17, but owing to the latest developments it is now considered very likely that he will leave sooner.

Mr. Reid has not been well since he returned from the United States some time ago. Beyond his speech on Thomas Jefferson in Wales, which caused considerable criticism in the United States, and which was delivered immediately after his return, he has not fulfilled any public engagements, while his visits to the embassy have been very few.

The news of the seriousness of Mr. Reid's condition became generally known today, and a procession of prominent persons streamed to Dorchester House to make inquiries and to leave cards.

Greeks Claim A Victory

Athens, Dec. 14.—The following official announcement was issued here: "At 6:30 this morning the army opened a general attack on the right wing. In spite of an incessant fire by the Turks the Greek troops occupied Aetofacho. Our artillery fired with marvelous precision and after a duel of four hours silenced the batteries at Ragatora. The officers and men showed exemplary courage in the dash. General Sapoundjakis personally directing the operations. Our wounded numbered about 200."

Washington, Dec. 14.—Representative Kindred of New York introduced in the house a bill providing for an investigation by congress of the alleged atrocities committed against the Indian rubber gatherers of the Putumayo district in Peru. A resolution was passed during the summer session of congress calling upon Secretary of State Knox for what information he might have in his possession regarding the atrocities in Peru. He has not yet made any reply to congress, although it is understood that a large mass of material has been prepared for transmission to the house.

Bouquets And Bricks For Public "Servicers"

Two-Cent Fare Should Apply to Inter-urban Roads.

Columbus, O., Dec. 14.—Reviewing its work for the last year, the public utilities commission, in its first annual report, threw bouquets and brickbats at various public utilities. The railroads and traction lines bear the brunt of the attacks. After the car shortage investigation, the report made by the commission says there is bound to arise in the mind of the inquirer either a suspicion of the sincerity of railroad managements or a contempt for their ability.

In regard to traction lines, the commission recommends that the 2-cent-per-mile fare law be extended specifically to include interurbans, without the privilege of a 10-cent minimum. It is suggested that the minimum fare should not be greater than 5 cents.

As a plan for alleviating the car shortage trouble, the commission suggests that each railroad should be required to own a sufficient number of cars, and if the management is not able to determine this number, then some government authority should fix the number. The same suggestion applies to tracks, sidings and motive power.

AS A SEQUEL TO SUSQUEHANNA COAL STRIKERS STRENUOUS WORK

Two Believed by Police to Have Been Leaders of the Riot.

New York, Dec. 14.—Nine of the 14 strikers arrested in the huts on the Palisades in connection with the strike in the coal pockets of the Susquehanna railroad at Edgewater, N. J., were identified as having taken part in the attack which resulted in the death of two Erie detectives and injuries to nine others. Of the nine identified, two are believed by the police to have been leaders and one perhaps to have killed Andrew J. Craw, the detective, who was shot in the temple and whose body was filled with buckshot.

BLACKSMITH SAID TO HAVE CONFESSED

Killing of Babe Removed Obstacle to Elopement.

Mt. Gilead, O., Dec. 14.—John Morrow, 30, a blacksmith, under arrest on a charge of smothering to death the 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Piatt, who reside on a farm near Marengo, according to Sheriff C. B. Chilcote of Morrow county admitted his guilt. Sheriff Chilcote said that Morrow told him in detail how he had caused the death of the child by placing a comfort over her head until she had been smothered to death.

The alleged motive of the killing, it is said, was to remove the one obstacle to the elopement of Morrow and Mrs. Piatt. The baby was killed the night before Thanksgiving day.

Mrs. Piatt was a former show girl connected with a troupe known as the "Fairies in the Well." While playing at Delaware she met and married Piatt, an aged farmer.

It is said that Mrs. Piatt had made the assertion that if it were not for her child she would leave her husband, whom she had sued three times for divorce, and elope with Morrow.

The movement has the indorsement, among others, of Cardinal Gibbons, Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, Archbishop Riordan of San Francisco, the bishops of Newark, Sioux City, Richmond and Bismarck.

WOULD REFORM STOCK 'CHANGE

Pujo Probers Throw Out a Bunch of Suggestions.

SEVERAL ARE HELD RADICAL

Members of the Board of Governors, Quizzed Regarding Manipulation in the Stock Market, Defend Methods and Practices on the Big Board. Review of the Day's Proceedings in Money Trust Investigation.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Counsel for the Pujo investigating committee threw out in the course of the day's hearing these radical suggestions of reform for the New York stock exchange:

First. That members of the big board be prohibited from executing orders for important operators who are known to have manipulated the market.

Second. That the New York stock exchange prohibit short sales of stock.

Third. That the exchange compel the actual delivery of stock at the New York exchange clearing house.

Members of the committee seemed to be under the impression that it would be as feasible for the stock exchange to prevent its members from doing business for big manipulators as it is to apply the regulation against any member executing orders for a member of the consolidated exchange. Also, the committee's counsel, apparently, believes that the enforced presentation of stock certificates at the clearing house would materially reduce speculation. All of these suggestions were met by the officers of the exchange with the argument that they would be impracticable.

A large part of the day's proceedings were taken up with the consideration of the ethics of the short sale. Frank K. Sturgis and Rudolph Keppeler, both former presidents of the exchange and now members of the board of governors, gave their views on so-called manipulation in the stock market and defended the methods and practices on the big board.

Mr. Sturgis could imagine circumstances under which it was perfectly justifiable to go short of the market, but he had never in his life sold a share in this way for himself and he did not approve of the practice when the market was in normal condition. He intimated that it was largely "a gamble," but admitted that the New York stock exchange has never seriously considered the proposition of forbidding it.

Mr. Keppeler thought that manipulation was legitimate when the rules of the exchange were observed and when it did not pass the bounds of reasonableness. The test of reason that he would apply seemed to depend on the wealth of the manipulator and the length of his pocketbook.

The committee in the course of the day tried to obtain from Harry Content, who has the reputation of executing the biggest orders on the street and of representing some of the most important traders, how the feat of artificially raising and depressing price levels was accomplished. Mr. Content smiled and shook his head. He said he knew very little about such things.

Killed by Automobile.

Bryan, O., Dec. 14.—Ernest Priest was instantly killed and Clark Zimmerman was fatally injured when they stepped from behind a wagon in front of an automobile on a road near here. Dale Key, driver of the automobile, did not see them in time to stop. J. A. Miller, a real estate dealer here, owner of the automobile, was with Key when the accident occurred.

Says Women Will Institute Peace.

New York, Dec. 14.—Representatives of more than 100 women's clubs gathered at Sherry's at a luncheon given by Mrs. Elmer Black in honor of the Baroness Bertha von Suttner, the author and winner of the Nobel peace prize. The baroness in an address said there never will be real peace in the world until woman suffrage is achieved.

INSTALLING LARGEST BOILER IN THE CITY

Washington Gas and Electric Co.
Will Soon Have a 250 Horse
Power Boiler With 132 Foot
Smoke Stack--Steeple Jack
Fred Light Will Construct New Stack.

The Washington Gas & Electric Company is installing the largest and most improved boiler in the city, and it will be in operation within the next few weeks.

The boiler is the famous "Sterling", manufactured by the Babcock and Wilcox Boiler company, of Barberton, Ohio. It is of 250 horse power and a decided improvement over the ordinary boiler. It will add greatly to the power capacity of the plant, and it will be capable of taking care of all increased business for years to come.

The new boiler supplants one of 100 horse power. It will also have one of the largest smokestacks in the city, it being over three feet in diameter and extending 132 feet into the air, or about 42 feet higher than the present highest stack, which is 90 feet.

Fred J. Light, of Franklin, Ohio, one of the best known "steeple jacks" of the country, is doing the work on the stacks, being assisted by his son. Mr. Light is the man who gold leaved the cross on the Catholic church here some three years ago.

The old stacks or chimneys are undergoing repairs, the tops being cut off of two of them, and new tops placed in position, and as soon as this work is finished, the work of building the huge stack for the new boiler will commence. This is expected to commence Tuesday of next week.

The work of the two steeple jacks will be watched with interest, as the big stack will be constructed piece by piece, and riveted or bolted together as the stack is built upward.

But the noted steeple jack is not afraid of dizzy heights. "I feel just as much at home on a stack 200 feet in the air as I do walking around down here," he laughingly said to a Herald reporter Saturday.

When finished the new boiler will represent an outlay of several thousand dollars, but with the old boilers it will be able to furnish power enough to meet the demands of Washington and the surrounding towns for many years to come.

Some idea of the size of the big mass of steel may be gleaned from the fact that it is nearly 30 feet to the top of the boiler frame.

Dayton Avenue Is Improved

Dayton avenue has been improved with crushed stone, and a number of bad mud holes eliminated.

The crushed stone was spread upon the street during the past ten days, and when thoroughly rolled it will be a decided improvement.

A narrow strip on Paint street opposite the B. & O. station has been covered with the stone and will afford a means of keeping out of the mud which usually becomes very bad at that point during the winter.

School House Broken Into

Three times this week the school house one mile east of this city on the Circleville pike has been broken into supposedly by tramps who wished to get warm, as nothing was missed from the school house, and there was evidence that someone had spent the night in the place.

In answer to complaint made to Chief McCoy he visited the school house late Friday night, and having been furnished with a key he went inside but found no traces of the offenders who had occupied the place the three previous nights.

Farmers' Wives In Idaho

The "Idaho Club Woman," the official magazine of the Idaho State Federation of Women's clubs, published at Twin Falls, Idaho, contains an article on the "Lot of the Idaho Farmer's Wife," by Robert W. Spangler, brother of Mrs. Carrie B. Willis, and formerly residing here.

The writer has the temerity to applaud Idaho methods as far superior to those of the East in smoothing the lives of the farmers' wives, and attributes the improvement to the "silent servant—electricity."

Mr. Spangler says that Idaho has perhaps more farms where electricity is used than any other state in the Union in proportion to its population.

The mistaken idea that electricity is only for the rich is disproven by the Idaho farmer, who finds it more economical to use this power than to attempt to farm in the old-fashioned way.

The "electric farmer's wife" in Idaho, cooks her meals, washes her clothes, does her housework and sends her children to school by means of electricity. She sews awhile on the motor-driven sewing machine; she adjusts the electric washing machine, puts the clothes in and reads the morning paper while the machine does the work.

Mr. Spangler certainly boosts electricity as a help to the farmer's wife and home.

Shoplifting Time Again at Hand

The season of the year when shoplifters have been in the habit of plying their nefarious trade, is at hand, but detection of theft this year will be followed by prosecution.

One man in speaking of the shoplifting habit stated that if he detected the thief that rigid prosecution of the case would be made, and the affair made a warning to others whose fingers have a tendency to stick to goods while they think the floor walker or clerks have their attention elsewhere.

Heretofore the shoplifter, when detected, was not molested other than to be called to the office or halted and compelled to return the stolen articles. The merchants have lost many goods by the light-fingered thieves, and a closer watch will be maintained this year.

Fresh supply Mrs. Austin's Bag Buckwheat now on hand at your grocers.

IN SOCIETY

Miss Dora Eggleston entertained the girls of her Sunday School class most enjoyably last night.

Fourteen were present and spent the evening in merry sociability, with music and a clever guessing contest.

The hostess served chocolate, cakes and sandwiches before the little party broke up.

The music, furnished by a quartet of local musicians, Messrs. Horstman, Kneisley, Ramsey and Larimer, aroused enthusiasm to a high pitch and was as fine dance music as the management could desire.

Miss Hazel Sears of 1001 Virginia street, entertained a party of friends with an old fashioned taffy pull. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The apple guessing contest proved to be very enjoyable and the prizes were won by Miss Sue McClure, which was a dainty pin cushion, and Mr. Charles Bumgarner, a pretty calendar.

DAILEY BOY IS SENT BACK TO LANCASTER

Clifford Dailey, one of the lads arrested for stealing brass from the Fayette Canning company's plant this week, was arraigned before Mayor Smith and bound over to court, together with his companion, Arthur Lindsay, and when tried by Judge Patton the Dailey boy was sent to the Lancaster Boys' Industrial school and young Lindsay was given his freedom on parole, with the admonition that he must be good or go to the reform school if he again came before the Probate court.

Dailey has served time in the school and was released on parole. However he has been in trouble two or three times since his release, and this time will serve an indefinite term at Lancaster.

He is the lad who ran away from home about a year ago, and when arrested at Hamilton stated that he had been stolen by a party of gypsies. He gave a thrilling account of the affair, which afterward proved false.

He has been in trouble innumerable times, and has been the means of drawing other boys into trouble which has resulted in their arrest.

Mr. William Anschutz, who had his leg broken and other injuries in a recent accident in Dayton, was brought from that city to the home of Mr. George Anchutz yesterday, and will remain there while recovering. He was accompanied by his wife and baby.

Thirty Children In County Home

In addition to the 34 inmates of the County Infirmary, the county has 30 other charges dependent upon it for support. These latter charges are the children of the County Home.

The 30 children in the home consisting of 20 whites and 10 colored inmates, range in age from 30 months to 15 years.

Until recently the number of Children was 35, but five have been released to return to their parents who are now able to look after them. Last year the number dropped as low as 19—the lowest number on record since the Home was established.

All of the youngsters are well and are being kept happy by the efforts of Supt. and Mrs. Tway.

The following list of books include those put into circulation in our Public Library during the past six months.

It is impossible with limited funds to purchase anything like the number of books constantly in demand. Especially is this true of fiction and juvenile books.

NOT POPULAR.

The great majority of people these days are firm believers in Civil Service and believe that the Civil Service rules are great aids to efficiency in the discharge of governmental duties.

The rules of Civil Service have, perhaps, been extended to greater lengths in the postoffice department and its numerous sub-departments than in any other branch of the government work, and that department is a model of efficiency so far as service is concerned.

So satisfactory have been the results of the application of Civil Service rules that not only is the demand for their retention practically unanimous, but a great majority favor extending the rules to still other branches of the government service.

To meet with public approval, however, the work of extending the Civil Service rules must be done in good faith, not solely with a view to continuing partisans in public office.

For this reason the abnormal haste of the outgoing administration in sending a multitude of eleventh hour appointments to the senate for confirmation and extending the rules of Civil Service so as to include branches and departments of the government not heretofore included within its provisions, is not meeting with the approval of the people.

This, for the very manifest reason that the aim is not to promote efficiency so much as it is to lodge securely in public office a host of partisans as a reward for political services rendered and by the extension of Civil Service rules render these appointees secure from removal at the hands of the incoming administration.

Such a course as that now being pursued is utterly repugnant to that sense of fairness which is a distinguishing characteristic of the American people.

Such a plan too, if successful, would hamper rather than promote good service by the government department. It would embarrass incoming heads of departments with assistants antagonistic to them—with subordinates who would rather, for political reasons see the incoming administration fail than to see it succeed.

Most patriotic Americans hope that the present senate will have the courage to refuse confirmation to these political appointments made in the dying hours of the outgoing administration and that the incoming chief executive will promptly nullify the attempt to extend the Civil Service rules for a purpose other than the one which those rules were designed to further.

The last acts of the outgoing administration are not meeting with popular approval by any means.

THE REAL TEST.

The incoming administrations in the national government faces a world of important work and the gravest responsibility. There has never been a time in the history of the nation except perhaps when the government was in process of being formed when the desire for change was so general and the demand so emphatic.

Few people really comprehend the magnitude of the task which confronts the incoming administration.

It is a comparatively easy task, although sometimes a tedious one, to educate a majority of the people into the belief that more ideal conditions of government are practical, but it is a difficult task to incorporate those theories into the existing law.

Without regard to party, a large majority of the people have declared that they believe that the present tariff laws work a hardship upon the many and confer an unjust advantage on the few, and have demanded that those laws be revised. Likewise the voters have declared that the present tendency to monopolies should be curbed and that existing monopolies should be broken up.

Educating the public to the point where it demands and expects remedial legislation is far different from so executing the affairs of government as that expectation will be fully realized without damage to existing business.

What is true of the incoming national administration is true also with each and every one of the state administrations. No matter which party ticket was successful at the polls that success was founded upon a desire for change and an emphatic promise of change.

How can these changes be brought about without unduly disturbing business. That is the problem which must be faced and solved on peril of political life.

Without doubt we have many suggestions in state government which are, in theory, of unsurpassed beauty.

Will they work in actual practical affairs. The voters have been told that they would. That statement has been challenged and the debate has waged fast and furious with those who opposed the adoption of the theories bad losers in the argument.

Having won the argument is now up to the place where incoming administrations must give a demonstration of the practical worth of the theories advocated.

Some of the cold practical men of affairs are still unconvinced of the wisdom of a radical change from the existing conditions and cling doggedly to the belief that after all it is not a question of plans of government so much as it is the individuals who are selected to run the government.

There is much force in the contention that good officials can bring good results with an imperfect form of government, and bad individuals can bring evil results with a good plan.

Poetry For Today

"LIBERTY TREE."

In a chariot of light from the regions of day,

The Goddess of Liberty came;
Ten thousand celestials directed the way.

And hither conducted the dame.
A fair budding branch from the gardens above,

Where millions and millions agree
She brought in her hand as a pledge of her love.

And the plant she named "Liberty Tree."

The celestial exotic struck deep in the ground;

Like a native it flourished and bore;

The fame of its fruits drew the nations around;

To seek out this peaceable shore.

Unmindful of names of distinctions, they came,

For freemen like brothers agree;

With one spirit endued, they one friendship pursued,

And their temple was "Liberty Tree."

Beneath this fair tree, like the patriarchs of old,

Their bread in contentment they ate,

Unvexed with the troubles of silver and gold,

The cares of the grand and the great.

With timber and tar they Old England supplied,

And supported her power on the sea:

Her battles they fought, without getting a groat,

For the honor of "Liberty Tree."

But hear, O ye swains—'tis a tale most profane—

How all the tyrannical powers, Kings, Commons and Lords, are uniting amain

To cut down this guardian of ours.

From the east to the west blow the trumpets to arms,

Through the land let the sound of it flee

Let the far and the near all unite with a cheer

In defense of our "Liberty Tree."

Santa Claus In Northern Home

A very clever arrangement at the Jess W. Smith store is causing much delight among the children and the grown ups as well, and it is Santa Claus in his northern home.

The jolly old man is seen peeping through the window, and his features cannot be mistaken. Around the outside of his home is a row of evergreens covered with snow, and bearing innumerable miniature electric bulbs of various colors.

From Santa's home the sweet tones of the Victrola come forth and bespeak the good cheer and jollity inside the home.

Old Santa Claus is peeping from the window as if anxious for the great moment to arrive when he starts forth on his journey of visiting the millions of expectant children on Christmas eve.

WELL-AIMED KICK SAVES LIFE.

Engineer's Foot Sends Little One Down an Embankment.

Glenwood, Minn.—While running his train out of Dent, W. A. Beardsley, engineer on freight No. 71, saw what seemed to be a blue parcel lying between the rails about twenty car lengths ahead. But it turned out to be a child who arose and sat down on one of the rails.

The emergency brake was applied, but it was impossible to stop in time. Beardsley ran out on the pilot, intending to pick the child up. He reached the pilot too late, but had time to extend his foot and kick the child off the rail and down the embankment.

The train was stopped, the child picked up and brought back to the hotel at Dent. A doctor was summoned and it was found that the child was unhurt except that it had a bruise where the engineer's shoe had struck.

New Form of Chromium.

Chromium prepared in the electric furnace by Moissan proved to be slightly soluble in molten copper. Further investigation has revealed a new form of chromium, which is crystalline, has a density of 7.1, is chemically active, and burns with a brilliant flame when heated alone in the air, being attacked at red heat even by nitrogen.

Preventing and Fighting The Country's Worst Scourge

THESE pictures show just how the white plague is being fought by the National Association For the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. At the top is shown a roof garden school for gardening in Chicago, where children who are suspected of being susceptible to the dread scourge are taught practice things in the pure air and sunlight, so that when they grow older they may live in the open as tillers of the soil, retaining health and happiness. At the bottom may be seen tuberculosis patients being cared for on a ferryboat, where they get the air and sun

The Wise Owl.

"In a hollow tree, during my vacation, I found two young owls," said a student. "I also found in the same nest two eggs. Puzzled that the mother owl should have abandoned her setting ere its completion, I laid the subject before my farmer host."

"The farmer told me that country people know well that the owl, after hatching half her brood, leaves the other eggs to be hatched by the newborn birds. These young are warm blooded, they are helpless to leave the nest and in nine cases out of ten they complete the hatch as well as the mother would have done."

"I'd consider this a superstition if I hadn't seen a proof of it."

OHIO HAPPENINGS

For Progressive School Code.

Columbus, O., Dec. 14.—A new item of the legislative program was practically determined upon at the conference here between Governor-elect Cox and the state candidates who were elected on the Democratic ticket last fall. Proposal by State Chairman Finley that the legislature be asked to create a commission to prepare a new and progressive school code for Ohio was given favorable consideration. This commission would be expected to report to the extra session if one is called.

Wound Proved Fatal.

Ashland, O., Dec. 14.—His spinal cord severed by a shot in the back the night of July 23, F. E. Ebert, 28, made a game fight for his life, but is dead after months of suffering. The shooting took place during a raid on a beer party on Moss Hill, near here. Policeman Tod Spreng, who fired the fatal bullet, was exonerated by the grand jury on a charge of shooting to kill.

Thieves Smash Window; Grab Gems.
Cleveland, O., Dec. 14.—Thieves hurled a brick wrapped in a newspaper through a window of the jewelry store of M. Weiland and escaped with a tray containing two dozen diamonds, valued at $2,000. The thieves had wedged the door shut and made their escape after a chase of several blocks by a crowd who witnessed the robbery.

Canton Man Drops Dead.

Columbus, O., Dec. 14.—H. A. Bowman of the firm of the Bowman Brothers Drug company of Canton, dropped dead as he was entering the E. E. Shedd store. Mr. Bowman was visiting the Shedd store on business and carried a suitcase. Apoplexy is thought responsible for death by Dr. Riebel, who was called.

Engineer Killed in Wreck.

Steubenville, O., Dec. 14.—Two westbound Panhandle freight trains figured in a rearend collision at Bowertown. The rear engine rolled over the bank and Engineer Charles Stocker of Dennison was killed. A caboose and several cars were wrecked and the track was blocked for several hours.

Goes Through the Ice.

Portsmouth, O., Dec. 14.—Paris Diles, 13, was drowned in a pond here, and only the fact that her sleeve caught on a cake of ice made possible the rescue of his sister, Tera Diles, 11. The boy was pushing his sister across the frozen pond on a small wagon when the ice broke.

Police Chief Is Fined.

Columbus, O., Dec. 14.—Chief of Police Charles E. Carter was fined $25 and costs for contempt of court by Police Judge Osborn, because he insisted on making a statement in the case of Jacob Gunter, who had been dismissed on a charge of violating the Sunday closing ordinance.

Port Clinton Pier Burns.

Port Clinton, O., Dec. 14.—Marsh fires on the north side of the river caused about 400 feet of the government pier to burn to the water's edge. Men were at work cleaning the government land, when the high south west wind carried the fire to the pier.

Demented Man Waded Creek

A stranger was found wading one of the creeks of Pickaway county this week, and placed under arrest on a lunacy charge.

The man was thinly clad and almost frozen when found. He had been wading the creek until frozen nearly to death.

The man is about 35 years of age and has sandy hair and beard, and hazel eyes. He will probably be sent to the State Hospital for the Insane.

Hens Lay Black Eggs That Burn

Coal and Lime in the Shells
Provide Heat Enough to Cook With.

F. J. Dedrick's coal-consuming black minorca hens, the fowls which produce the coal-black eggs, at Oxford, N. Y., are believed by Oxfordites to be the greatest discovery of the century. It is evident, too, that people outside Oxford are interested in the new breed, or rather the new development of an old breed, for in every mail Mr. Dedrick receives letters of inquiry concerning his wonderful fowls.

Preliminary tests of the black egg shells to determine their value as

One man living in Pennsylvania wishes to obtain some of this season's hatch of the fowls, to continue experiments on the culm heaps.

Throughout the mining country there are thickly scattered huge heaps of fine coal dust representing uncountable heat units, no economic use for which has ever been found. If the hens thrive well in the coal country, they should solve at the same time the fuel problem and the question of the high cost of living. It is obvious that if an egg contains in its shell potential heat which can be used to cook that same egg and also to help cook other dishes, the price of meals in restaurants can safely be lowered.

Tippling.

If it is the decision of the New York court that a travelling man cannot put tips in his expense account, that ruling will do more toward breaking up the tipping system than anything else you could mention. It doesn't require moral courage or a physical strain to be generous at the expense of the boss.

Wisdom of the Elements.

Lightning ran down a mule's leg in Anderson County, Kan., the other day. But, says "The Hutchinson News," it showed good judgment in hurrying away before it got hurt.

One Good Strike.

There's a billposters' strike in Chicago, and Chicagoans who have regard for the appearance of their city wish that it would be permanent.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

A clergyman made an unusual long call at the home of a parishioner recently. He talked and talked, until finally little Edna, who was present, whispered: "Mamma, did the preacher forget to bring his 'amen' with him?"

Thoughtful Girl.

"Can you take a little care of that card of mine?" implored the impetuous girl to the office boy who was rapidly rolling it into a wad, "and bring it back to me so I can send it in somewhere else? Cards cost me a cent apiece."

Fumigating Combs.

How often do we hear some person say that it is impossible to keep bees in their locality on account of the wax moth, claiming that a good share of the bees throughout the country are annually destroyed in this manner. If the truth was known, however, ninety-nine per cent. of all the colonies so destroyed are either queenless or have swarmed themselves to death and are too depopulated to protect their hives, the consequences being that the moths get the upper hand. If a colony is in good condition there need be no worrying over wax moths, even though the bees are of the common German strain.

April and the following warm months is the time when this insect is most in evidence. The larvae make a rapid growth feeding upon the grains of pollen and other ingredients found in old combs, for about twenty-one days, they then spin cocoons where a transformation takes place and they emerge shortly as adult moths.

Each female will usually lay about 300 eggs during her lifetime.

Montclair, N. J.—A Persian rug, 200 years old and worth $2,000, has been used as a doormat unwittingly for the past year by Mrs. F. G. Fayen of Upper Mountain avenue. She called in an expert to have her rug renovated and then discovered the value of the doormat. The rug now graces the parlor.

Divorced Because an Infidel. Nowata, Okla.—A divorce was granted to Mrs. Roselyn Monzee from M. R. Monzee on the grounds that he is an infidel, which allegation was held sufficient by Judge T. L. Brown to grant the decree.

Bloomington Meets Defeat

In a clever exhibition of water polo, squash tennis or some other kindred absurd sport on the part of the Bloomington Basketball team and an equally clever display of self-control on the part of the Pirates, the latter team trimmed the former five to the tune of 42 to 26, Wednesday night at the Armory. An additional side show was offered the large audience by the Bloomington official who was laboring under the impression that he was referee in a game of golf.

The locals presented a pleasing sight in their new uniforms and by excellent work on the floor showed that they were worthy of the somewhat imposing title of "Pirates."

Captain "Micky" played his usual star game for Hillsboro, while H. Rogers and Emery were up to their ears in the game at all periods. Moorhead and R. Rogers also put up a dandy game.

A return game will be played at Bloomington Christmas night. The Pirates have not yet decided whether they will wear outing flannels for a game of tennis on that occasion, or a coat of armor for a military imbroglio.—Hillsboro Dispatch.

Insane Attorney Hires Two Doctors

Frank Bookwalter, a Ross county attorney who was placed on trial on a lunacy charge this week, secured two physicians to assist him with their evidence, but when one of the physicians returned an opinion to the effect that the man was insane, the Ross county Probate Judge returned a verdict of insanity.

Bookwalter had been confined in a private sanitarium in Columbus, but escaped and refused to return. He will probably be sent to the state asylum at Athens.

A Demand For Better Plays

Of late years a radical change has come about in the theatrical situation, caused by the demand of the public for a better and higher class of plays. The old time managers of the fifty cent shows have realized that theirs is almost a "lost game". The public has recognized that it is just as possible to expect to see a high class attraction for cheap prices as it is to get forty-cent coffee at 25c. Realizing this, the up-to-date managers have bent every effort to give their patrons their money's worth. Some of the popular plays of the past that have enjoyed years of popularity and prosperity, are still on the road while they are enjoying the same popularity, they are not the money making enterprises as of old. They are fast being superseded by new comedies. The old time popular-priced show with its handsome hero, its persecuted heroine, its villainous bad man and the funny comedian, no longer interests any one. Attractions that have had the longest runs in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston have been high class, up-to-date comedies.

One of the most popular of this class to be seen at the local play house this season is Fred Raymond's "Little Miss Susan", which is underlined to appear at the Empire Opera House Saturday, December 21st.

GUARDING PAPER MONEY.

Checks Against Thefts of Currency While in Process of Printing.

The paper money of the Government is brought in from bound chests, locked and sealed, from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to the cash room of the Treasury and there delivered upon receipt to James A. Sample, chief of the division of issue, in sheets of four bills each. They are complete with signature and numbers, except for the sale, which is printed upon them with power presses in a small apartment under the cash room.

These presses are worked by two people, usually a man pressman and a woman feeder or assistant. When the seal has been imprinted upon the bills they are counted automatically, bound in packages of equal numbers by bands of paper, marked, signed by the persons who have handled them, and passed into the adjoining room, where the sheets are cut, the bills are recounted and inspected, so that the imperfect ones may be thrown out. They are then bound into packages of equal amounts and taken to the drying vault, where they lie upon the shelves for several weeks, until the ink has become perfectly dry.

Every safeguard that ingenuity can contrive is placed around these transactions, and the chief of division can tell which of his hundred or more subordinates have touched the different bills in the vaults. He knows who received them, who printed the seal, who wrapped and cut them; for every package is numbered and its history is recorded in an enormous book.

The combination of checks is so complete that Mr. Sample would know within twenty minutes if a single bill were missing, but he has never had occasion to test this knowledge except twice within fifteen years. Only two attempts have ever been made to steal the money of the Government while it is in this stage of its history.

On one occasion many years ago a pressman passing a pile of notes upon the table of his neighbor slipped the top sheet under his blouse without being observed and carried it with him into the lavatory, where he was successful in concealing it. The theft was discovered within five minutes and it was clearly apparent that he alone could be guilty, although the evidence was purely circumstantial. No one saw him take the money. Therefore he was not arrested and was never publicly charged with the crime. But he was dismissed from the service and he knew the reason why. The bills were never recovered. He probably destroyed them, as they did not appear in circulation.

On another occasion eight or ten years ago a colored messenger whose business was to haul the money about on a cart slipped a loose sheet into his pocket unobserved while passing between the printing and counting rooms. This theft was also unseen, but the responsibility was fastened upon him. The pile of notes was complete when it left the printer, for it was counted and registered automatically in the press. When it reached the counting room one sheet was missing and the package had not been out of the possession of the colored messenger in the meantime. Therefore he alone was responsible, and as he could not offer any satisfactory explanation he too was dismissed from the service, but was not prosecuted because there was no direct proof of his guilt.

Male Friendships.

Perhaps too, much that belonged to interchanges between man and man is now possible between woman and man, as equals.—Light.

Some time after the civil war a book, entitled "The Real Abraham Lincoln," was written by Dr. Hall. It was a scathing criticism of Lincoln's life.

AMID THE NAMELESS HEAT.

Besides the Merciless Severity of the Labor to Which the Convicts Are Held the Terrible Climate Enervates Every White Man.

The pardoning of the French murderer Soleilland created so much indignation because his deportation is looked upon as an encouragement of murder, and probably the murderer himself, too, in his solitary confinement, thinks that after escaping death he is destined to live there a happy, idyllic life and end his days in peace. This is, however, a great mistake. The bagnio of French Guiana is worse than death; it is hell on earth. A political criminal, Liard-Courtois, who, after living five years with the deported, was pardoned on the occasion of the amnesty granted in the Dreyfus affair, gives this description of the penal settlement: "There the most terrible torture ever devised by the modern penal law awaits the unfortunates. Death is a hundred times more desirable than this punishment. Beside the merciless severity with which the convicts are held to their hard labors there, threatens the terrible climate that enervates every white man, however strong his health. No one can stand this nameless heat. During the summer the mean temperature by day is 80 degrees F. in the shade. In the evening it yields to a cold humidity. During the winter there are incessant rain showers, but the heat is not less enervating. If it does not rain for any length of time the swamps become partly dry and produce noxious vapors that are the cause of fatal diseases. The air is permeated with infectious miasma, to which more than half of the new arrivals immediately succumb. After six months the number of the remaining is still less. The statistical inquiries go to show that of every hundred prisoners eighty die in the first six months. Marsh fever and consumption accomplish with great rapidity the work which the President's mercy spared the executioner. To breathe means, in Guiana, to become infected. Add to this, at night, the swarms of flies and mosquitoes whose sharp stings pierce all covers; of insects that dig into the pores of the skin and carry poison into the body; of vermin of every description that attack the unfortunates when asleep."

There are, to be sure, some privileged prisoners, who are allotted a piece of land and can live with their families; but their number is insignificant—five to every thousand! In 1899 there were 35 of such privileged of 7,000 deported. And all those who do not enjoy this privilege know nothing but their place of work, where they wear themselves out by incessant hard labor, driven by the whip of the cruel warden, tormented by hunger, despite fever and disease, without a word of complaint that would only entail the severest chastisements.

In a few weeks the new transport of prisoners to which also Soleilland belongs will arrive on the vessel La Loire at the Safety Island (between Royal and Joseph Islands), and at the floating wharf they will be subjected to a narrow search. Everything they possess is taken away from them, the dearest article of memory that unites them with the world of yore they have to surrender. "Abandon hope," that dreadful inscription on the entrance of Dante's Purgatory, slowly engraves itself with flaming letters on the hearts of the convicts. In herds of one hundred they are being driven to their places of labor in the interior, and a hopeless life, terrible in its monotonous cruelty, begins for them. They have to cut trees and transport wood. Profound silence by day and by night, interrupted only by the whizzing of the whip, the curses of the supervisors and the groaning of the exhausted. When the convict has borne this wretched life for a number of years and, however dulled and brutalized, is still capable of keeping up his courage by a faint glimmer of hope, he may, perhaps, advance from the third class of convicts, to which he hitherto belonged, to the second class. This, however, means only an insignificant change of life; there is the same hard labor, the same suffering, the same privations, though he has the satisfaction of looking down upon others who fare even worse. And after a number of more years he is admitted to the first class. And, if during the whole time he has not been guilty of the least infraction of discipline, if his superiors are kindly disposed toward him, if all the conditions required by law are complied with, then he may perhaps be recommended for the dreamed of privilege of being allotted a small piece of land that, despite hard work, affords him a scanty existence and at least allows him to breathe freer. But how many dream this dream in vain, and the only relief offered them is a small spot of earth surrounded with mango tree—the grave.

HABITS OF HINDOO SERVANTS

If Not Watched Will Sell Household Stores and Rent out Washing.

Excellent servant as the Indian is in many respects, honesty is not one of his qualities, and he has to be strictly looked after when either money or goods are entrusted to him. A mistress cannot go into her kitchen, consult the cook as to what the meals should be and what should be ordered from the shops and leave the rest to him. She has to give him out from her locked up stores every spoonful of everything that is required for the day's cooking, else the goods would be sold outside.

The dusters, the name in India for every description of kitchen and pantry and stable towel, have to be doled out every day or every two days, the soiled ones being counted and locked up till they are given to the dhobi (washerwoman), who must not be allowed to keep the clothes of the household longer than is absolutely necessary or he will let them out to his friends for small sums—silk handkerchiefs for feast days, stockings and woolen undergarments in the cold weather, so that holes appear in unaccustomed places.

A khitmatgar (table servant) will be observed to wear a pair of cotton socks one day, silk ones the next, woolen ones the next, not belonging to his master—detection would be too easy in that case—but hired from some one else's dhobi at a pice (a farthing) a pair. As the house servants of course never wear shoes indoors the stockings suffer considerably.

The cook goes to the bazaar every morning to buy meat, fish, ghee (native butter), vegetables—all the food in fact that cannot be stored, and his book is brought for inspection every day or else expenses would increase in a surprising manner. He of course pockets a percentage on all he spends, and so long as it does not exceed an anna in the rupee, 6 1/4 per cent, no one objects. But it is only by long experience that one gets to know proper prices, and newcomers are woefully imposed upon, 100 or 200 per cent, being often charged.

The cook arranges his prices to suit the circumstances of his master, and as soon as promotion with increased pay comes up goes everything, so that a Colonel's beef or mutton costs more than a Major's, a Major's than a Captain's, a Captain's than a subaltern's, though there may be no change at all in the style of living or in the number of the family.

In the civil service the same thing happens. The pay of every post in the various services is published in the official lists, and the servants know to a halfpenny what their master gets. Some ladies try to do their own marketing, but things are always much dearer for them than for the natives in the bazaar, so that there is no advantage in it, and it is, besides, extremely disagreeable, for the less one sees of the stalls there, particularly the meat stalls, the better.

CUPID ROBS THE NAVY.

Excuse for Joining the Army is that They Can Get Married Sooner.

Washington, D. C.—To be a rear-admiral some day the height of their ambition, without a wife until they had at least become ensigns, or to ultimately be a major-general in the army, the next best thing, with the privilege of having a wife to start off with, was the problem which recently faced the nine midshipmen of the navy who switched from duty on warships to service on land.

They chose the army and the wife. The nine midshipmen resigned their commissions in the navy and received in lieu commissions as second lieutenants in the army. The names of the embryo generals and former midshipmen and their new billets:

Walter Smith, Philadelphia, coast artillery; Eric L. Ellington, San Francisco, cavalry; John P. Edgerly, New York City, infantry; George F. Humbert, New York City, coast artillery; Arthur W. Ford, Iowa, Kan., coast artillery; Reuben N. Perley, New York City, coast artillery; Joseph R. Cygon, Meadville, Miss., coast artillery; Vincent Meyer, Brooklyn, field artillery; John H. Birdsall, Waretown, N. J., coast artillery.

Naval regulations permit no midshipman to marry. Their whereabouts is uncertain and their pay is too small.

Soon there will be more midshipmen and ensigns than there are berths in the navy for them. It was for this latter reason that the Navy Department was willing for the midshipmen to go into the army.

With the army it is different. There is always a dearth of officers, West Point never turning out enough to fill the needs.

Unique Among Inns.

The Chequers inn at Slapstones, near Osmosterly, must be unique among English inns in one respect. It boasts of a fire, which for more than a century has never been allowed to go out. The place is a quaint little building, to which many visitors resort on account of its never extinguished fire and the turf cakes baked upon its hearth. It has been in the occupation of one family for over one hundred years.

London, Dec. 14.—King George, through his secretary, has sent a letter to the Scripture Gift mission in reply to one from the secretary of that organization, in which he says that it is quite true that he promised his mother, Queen Alexandra, as long ago as 1881, that he would read a chapter of the Bible every day, and that he had adhered to this promise ever since.
